BACK FROM MANILA.

Sergeant Julius S. Degman Has Arrived at San Francisco.

Below is a letter received Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Degman from their son Julius, who has just returned from the Philippines:

DEAR MOTHER AND FATHER:

U. S. TRANSPORT THOMAS, November 28, 1900.

Once again we are leaving our native land. Altho' still very weak from our long lay-up with fever, I was at last decided to go to Manila. Many of the courtiers, myself among the number, have been ordered to go to Manila. I have been fairly out at sea. I have continued to improve steadily and each day feel better. In comparison with the others, I am just the reverse, and up and about now. I have been in the company of a boy of the Forty-first.

We reached Nagasaki, Japan, November 28th, where we stopped to coal. While there I spent one day on shore. On the evening of the 1st we steamed out through the strait, saw an active volcano in the distance and with us on the broad Pacific homeward bound. We encountered a storm on the 15th, but the others remained at the Hospital.

December 1st we passed the Golden Gate Saturday morning were inspected by quarantine officers at 3 p. m.; on Sunday morning were ferried to the Presidio docks; from there we went to the General Hospital, where we had dinner and our medicines only saw relief. I was sent to regular quarters, the others remained at the Hospital.

Another examination took place today to determine who are to be finally discharged. I will write as soon as my own examination is over. My medicines only saw relief. In that case you can look for me instead of a letter.
